THE COLUMBIAN

COLUMBIA DEMOCRAT, STAR OF THE NORTH AND COLUMBIAN CONSOLIDATED.)

Issued weekly, every Friday morning, at BLOOMSBURG, COLUMBIA COUNTY, PA.

At TWO DOLLARS per year, payable in advance, or during the year. After the expiration of the year, 2.50 will be charged. To subscribers out of the county the terms are $1 per year strictly in advance —$2.25 if not paid in advance and $3.00 if payment be delayed beyond the year.

No paper discontinued, except at the option of the Publisher, until all arrearages are paid, but long continued credits after the expiration of the first year will not be given.

All papers sent out of the State, or to distant post offices, must be paid for in advance, unless a responsible person in Columbia county assumes to pay the subscription due on demand.

POSTAGE is no longer exacted from subscribers in the county.

JOB PRINTING.

The Jobbing Department of the COLUMBIAN is very complete, and our Job Printing will compare favorably with that of the large cities. All work done on demand, neatly and at moderate prices.

Poetical.

"SOMETIME."

We find this beautiful little poem in the Williamsport Gazette & Bulletin. Whether original we are not informed, but judge it to be so as the author bears the name of one of its editors:

In the fanciful sea of our waking dreams
Is an island of rare delight,
All covered over with groves of green
And odorous flowerets bright.

Mansions, splendid as castles in Spain,
Home for the good, and blest;
Couches of velvet, as soft as down,
For the weary ones to rest.

Pure breezes, cool to the heated brain,
On their wings waft melody
Of the tiny songsters, with plumage gay,
That dwell in each scented tree.

Ah, never was sunset-sky so fair,
All tinted in brilliant dyes,
And the glory that circles that far-off isle
Is the light of our loved one's eyes.

On, on we sail, but so distant still
Is the island of our rhyme—
Do the toilers of life's sea e'er reach
The shores of the far "Sometime?"

—Mary E. Lambert.

GOING OUT WITH THE TIDE.

Raise me up in my bed, wife;
There's the sound of the sea in my ear;
And it sings to my soul in a music
That earth is not blessed to hear.
Open the little window, wife,
Then come and sit by my side;
We'll wait God's sweet flood-water
To take me out with the tide.

I see the harbor-bar, wife,
And my dear little boat in the bay;
But who shall be able to guide her
When her master hath passed away?
I know that her helm, so trusty,
Will answer no other hand
As it answered mine, when I knew,
You were waiting for me on the strand.

Our boys are all before us, wife;
Wee Jack is beneath the wave,
And blue-eyed Freddie sleeps, wife,
In yonder yew-bowered grave,
Where the early daisies cluster
Around his baby bed,
And the thrush sits chanting softer
In yon tree that shades the dead.

There's a chill runs through our hearts, wife,
When the harbor-bar doth moan;
But the darker grief will be yours, wife,
When you are left in the cot alone,
But a few more flows of the sea, wife,
And a few more ebbs of the tide,
Then God's sweet flood shall bring you
Again to your old man's side!

The red sun is low in the west, wife,
And the tide sinks down with the sun;
We will part with each other in love, wife,
For sweetly our lives have run.
Give me your hand, my own love,
As you gave in the days of yore;
We will clasp them, ne'er to be sundered
When we meet on the far-off shore!

—Chambers' Journal.

THE WAY TO WOO.

Don't be in too great a hurry;
Hurries never pay;
Take your time—a wary general
Always feels his way.
Do not pull your line too quickly;
Rather let it play.

Take her sometimes to a concert—
Sometimes to a ball;
Sometimes spend a pleasant evening—
Sometimes only call;
Sometimes 'twill be far the wisest
Not to go at all.

Do not meet your would-be rivals
With a jealous frown;
Show her that you don't care two-pence
For any man in town,
Praise her other beaux, then surely
She will run them down.

Send her presents—not too costly—
Trifles light as air;
Dainty fruits to please her palate;
Flowers for her hair—
Something that will show you chose it
Fairest for the fair.

Vex her sometimes (constant sunshine
Is so very tame;)
Just a little dash of water
Brightens up a flame;
Love that doesn't fizz and sputter
Isn't worth the name.

Then at last, some quivering evening
(Moonlit nights are stale.)
Drop into her cosy parlor,
Looking rather pale.
Strive to hide your woe unuttered,
But be sure to fail.

Just hint of a distant journey
As a secret half confessed;
Darkly speak of hidden sorrow,
That forbids you rest;
Whisper that 'tis hard to leave her,
But, perhaps, 'tis best.

Then, if she should blush and tremble
With a shy surprise—
If there is no roguish sparkle
Twinkling in her eyes—
Then—then tell the old, old story
Told first 'neath Eden's skies.

Miscellaneous.

SOCIAL LIFE IN MEXICO.

The following interesting facts are translated from Princess Salm-Salm's "Recollections of Mexico:"

Although the Mexicans are a lazy people, they rise early—the gentlemen to take their morning ride, the ladies to go to early mass, which is the only occasion on which they appear in the streets on foot. They take a luncheon between twelve and one o'clock. The Mexicans are a very temperate people; they drink little brandy, wine or beer, but on every table you find pulque, a light, vinous beverage resembling cider, obtained from the American agave. As a general thing they lead very regular, exemplary lives, but gambling is their passion.

The men are usually small, delicately but symmetrically made, and have very small hands and feet. They are very polite and graceful, reserved and cautious, as though they were always on their guard against deception—and for a very good reason, since trustworthiness is far from being a leading virtue among them. They are ready to promise—with words; are always at your service, but they are not to be trusted. Fifty years of civil strife would be sufficient to demoralize better people than the decendants of Cortez and his followers. They love money, but have little idea how it is to be honestly obtained; hence it is looked upon rather as being meritorious than sinful to steal from the Government, be that Government what it may. Whoever gets into office uses his position for this purpose.

In general they are very hospitable and at dinner there are always two or three covers laid for guests who may chance to come in. Frugal as they usually are, when they entertain they provide very bountifully.

The women of the better class are very handsome, and are especially remarkable for their abundant heads of black hair, their large, dark, melancholly eyes and their small, delicately formed extremities. They marry young, often at the age of fourteen or fifteen, and usually have large families; it is not unusual to see a woman with a dozen children, and sometimes with even more. The children are very frail, very quiet and well behaved. I have never seen them romp and quarrel, as I have always seen hearty, strong children do in other countries. The mothers usually nurse their children themselves, are very fond and devoted, and bring them up very irrationally. They treat them like dolls, and their chief study is to dress them prettily. The children are very precocious; up to their tenth or twelfth year they progress with wonderful rapidity, but then their intellectual development becomes very slow or entirely ceases.

Family life in Mexico is quite pleasant; the husband and wife are always seen together, and they live mostly at home, surrounded by their relations. Parents separate themselves from their daughters willingly, and not unfrequently they marry them to men who are content to make the house of their father-in-law their home and to live at his expense.

The ladies are exceedingly ignorant. They read nothing but their prayer books and are hardly able to write the most commonplace letter. They know no language but Spanish, and of history and geography they are entirely ignorant. They knew before they were evaded by the French that Paris is the capital of France, and of London they had also heard, since from both of these cities they have always received their finery and many objects of luxury. All they know about Rome is that the Pope has his residence there, and but for that circumstance they would not know there is such a city. They, however, have a good deal of taste for music and many of them sing and play very credibly.

In many Mexican houses they have, as a rule, no regular dinner. If they are hungry they eat some simple dish or drink a cup of chocolate, which is excellent; the coffee, however, although they raise a good quality, is not good. They do not know how to prepare it.

At six o'clock they drive out and from the promenade they go to the opera or theatre, taking their daughters, dressed in their finest with them. If perchance there is no place of amusement to which they can go, then they remain at home and amuse themselves with cards and music. The young people assemble very frequently for a hop or a tertulia, as such gatherings are called in Mexico.

Although there are in Mexico among the 8,000,000 inhabitans about half a million negroes—very few in the cities—the house-servants are Indians, mostly young girls, who are generally treated in a very friendly and familiar manner by their employers. They are well skilled in household affairs, and many of them embroider beautifully.

More than half the population of the country are Indians; those who live on the plateau of Mexico, and in the vicinity are decendants of the Aztecs, who, 300 years ago, astonished the Spaniards with their civilization, which some say surpassed that of the ancient Egyptians. The conquerors, who expected to meet with savages only, found in the Aztec capital a flourishing city containing many fine buildings adorned with numerous works of art. What has become of this intelligent, industrious people? The manner in which the English treated the American Indians, bad as it was, had some excuse in the obstinacy with which they resisted every attempt to civilize them; but the Aztecs were very far from being savages.

Maltreated as the poor natives were, they took refuge in the forests, where they were deprived of every means of culture. Their children grew up in ignorance and, in course of time, they even lost mechanical skill. No wonder they are shy and distrustful. When they are well treated they evince great goodness of heart, are faithful and evince a strong desire to learn.

When the conquerors spread over the country the aborigines could not keep entirely away from them, especially in the cities. Of this contact there came among them a new sort of civilization. They soon learned the value of money, and that it could be obtained by selling their services to their lazy masters. The consequence is that we see them every where the petty tradesmen and laborers of the country. They were almost exclusively the providers for the capital—they came from every direction with their poultry, fruits, vegetables, wood, charcoal, etc., etc.

The women work more than the men, and, togeather with a heavy load, carrying their babies on their backs, they can be seen on every road leading to the city, going on a dog-trot to market. Their dress is very simple. A piece of blue cotton stuff is wound round the waist and falls to the ankles, while the shoulders and breast are covered by another piece of cotton of a different color in which there is a hole to put the head through I have seen the peasants in the Tyrol wear pieces of carpet in a similar manner.

The dress of the men is still less complete. Around the waist they wear a piece of leather in such a manner that it forms a sort of short breeches. Their shoulders they cover in the same way the women cover theirs, and on their heads they wear a palm-leaf hat.

The Aztec women have large, handsome eyes, are generally well formed, and many of them are quite good looking; but the women of the other Mexican tribes are, for the most part, ugly.

Not a few of the companions of Cortez married Aztec girls, and from these unions, which became more and more frequent, there sprang a mongrel race called creoles. Many of these are rancheros, planters or farmers, and are looked upon as forming the best portion of the nation. Some of them are very rich; and, as they have little opportunity to get rid of their money except by gambling, they gratify their passions for costly apparel.

Mrs. Mary Abbott, of Smyrna, Del., has been led a blushing bride to the altar seven times. She has been Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Traux, Mrs. Farrow, Mrs. Riggs, Mrs. Wallace, Mrs. Berry, Mrs. Pratt, and now Mrs. Abbott, and has married a widower every time but once, and has reared numerous step children for her husbands, but has never had children of her own.

Ridicule is a weak weapon when leveled at a strong mind; but common men are cowards and dread an empty laugh.

Spite is a little word, but it represents as strange a jumble of feelings and compound of discords as any polysyllable in the language.

A teacher in the Port Jervis schools was last week explaining to the children that usually all words ending with "let" meant something small, as streamlet, rivulet, hamlet, etc. Whereupon a smart boy wanted to know if hamlet meant a small ham!

A Virginia widow refused to marry a bald-headed man, though he was a millionaire. She explained: "We'd have a family fight some time, and he has no hair to catch hold of."

Sycophants.

One of the most despicable characters that disfigures society with his presence is the sycophant. He is always obsequious to those in power, always fawning upon those who have patronage to bestow. In politics this class of persons will "grease and swallow themselves" with the most remarkable skill, and a facility which only innate meanness or long practice could produce

The reader has seen these fellows by the score, and times without number. Just previous to a convention or an election, they will denounce certain candidates with violence, and heap upon them all manner of vituperation, declaring most emphatically that they are unfit to hold any position of trust or honor, and that their election would be a triumph of fraud and villainy, and alarmingly disastrous to the country. But as soon as these persons are nominated, and especially after they are elected to office where patronage is to be bestowed or help secured, these virtuous denouncers of the men will get down on their knees to the officers, humbly crave a slice of bread and butter, and toady in the most disgusting manner to the individual in authority they had defamed in private life.

Can humanity present itself in a more pitiable and contemptible aspect? Can what ought to be manhood get down to any lower debasement? For a serf or a slave this abject littleness might be excusable; but for a free American—a sovereign by birthright—it is not only unpardonable, but nauseating.

And next to the debasement of the traducer, is the acceptance of his subjection by the one he seeks to propitiate. He must know the hollowness of the professions of friendship, and have some appreciation of the unspeakable depths of contempt to which the being has sunk who can thus stultify himself for a little pelf; and yet he accepts the empty tender of good will, takes the lick-spittle into his confidence, and they mutually plan to further each other's ends.

It is the most common occurrence for politicians to thus exhibit themselves before the world; and, we pen the words with a sense of shame, it is no uncommon thing for the people to take up these very men and elect them to office!

There is something noble in the forgiveness of an injury. A man is never more God-like than when he can pardon an enemy who is deserving of clemency. But this taking of leprosy to the bosom; this making a common bed in slime with pestilent corruption; this collusion of traducer and traduced for the spoils of office and the purposes of political public robbery, is so opposite to the other that it may be classed as diabolical.

Reader, have you seen anything of this kind of men? Do you recall any instances which have fallen under your notice of this sort of co-partnership in political legerdemain? Have you ever known of any of these compacts between former enemies for the sole purpose of "feathering their own nest?" Have no instances of men "eating their own words" fallen under your observation? How many of the politicians of the times are free from these blistering infamies? this loathsome wallowing in the mire? How many of this class have you upheld, voted for, aided at the primaries, assisted by word and deed to honorable positions? If any, do you not feel the blood of honest manhood mantling your cheek and brow as the memory comes in upon you, and you reflect how low you have trailed the banner of free suffrage in the dust? How beneath your own conception of manly dignity and patriotic duty you have been led to act in such an exercise of your rights as a voter and a citizen. Can you excuse yourself to your own judgment and conscience? Will you not be a man hereafter and do better?—Exchange.

The Wise Choice of a Wife.

He that findeth a true wife, findeth a treasure whose beauty and lustre not even the shadow of death can dim. It has often seemed strange to me that men are so blind in their choice of companions. In this they sometimes seem to be the weaker sex, for they yield to deliberately planned schemes, and in the face of an unhappy lot, take painted dolls or artful women to share the "better or worse."

And yet, after all, as the responsibility rests more on him, it may be a harder thing than we are aware of, to find one whose price is above rubies. There exists such an artificial state of society! Beauty is ranked so high, and the graces so indispensable, that homely in-door life looses its chiecest charm, and woman becomes a creature of waywardness and prettiness, that must be petted, in order to keep her in smiles and decent humor.

Most young men think of "an establishment," and somebody must preside of whom they are proud. They love to hear their friends say: "Well, L—— has a fine wife—a woman worth having, she plays and sings, she talks agreeably, and altogether, makes a sensation."

But when trouble comes, where is the strong helper—the courageous spirit!—Those modest home bodies, who seem so timed and backward—who oversee the humble household, and ask no praise but that of the husband's heart—who shine but little at parties, but who are the stars of home—these are the wives for the trials of earnest life. Their love is the rock never shaken by the tempest.

NEGLECTED CELLARS.—It is not probable that the amount of sickness bred in cellars can ever be accurately estimated, but there is no doubt that many mysterious cases of typhoid and scarlet fevers, rheumatism and ague, may be correctly traced to the malarious effluvia emanating from these neglected corners. Old boxes, bins and barrels, which have contained vegatable matter, meat, fish, etc., need thorough overhauling, because when standing in a dark corner they look empty, and there may be enough poison left sticking on the sides and bottom to effect the health of the household. The work of cleansing is often left to the women and boys of the family. A man had much better leave his work a day, to make a thorough examination and purification of the cellar, than to be unduly anxious about getting in his crops in extra season. After all garbage is carried out, let the ceiling and wall be faithfully brushed with an old broom; and if this is done once a month the atmosphere will be all the sweeter. Use plenty of lime, and in dry weather keep the doors and windows open a part of every day. Old tin and wooden ware should not be allowed to stand year after year upon the cellar shelves. If it is not fit to be used, throw it away.—Manufacturer and Builder.

THE "Busy Bees" have had their intelligence questioned by Sir John Lubbock, who asserts that they are stupid and incapable of communicating with each other. On the other hand he compliments the ants—which are indeed wonderful creatures—and says they have ideas of their own which they can readily impart to their companions. Sir John experimented with bees and ants, before expressing these opinions, in their following way. He took a bee from the hive, marked him and put him beside a plate of honey. For a week the bee worked busily, carrying off the spoil, but never brought a solitary companion to help him. He came every morning to the honey for observation apparently, flew round it and back to the hive without alighting, and then began the work of the day. Sir John tried a similar experiment with an ant, who immediately brought back a company of workers, the most of whom showed a definite knowledge of the place where the food was. The experiment was a nice one. Seventeen pins were put on a cork, and the honey was placed on the head of three of the pins only. All the ants that came with the first followed him directly to the right pin, and of twenty-seven others that came alone, nineteen went up the right pin, and only eight up all the others. But after all, the question between the ant and the bee may not be one of intelligence, but one of disposition or character. If Sir John could look down on this world of ours and try his experiments with men, he would find some who would keep discreetly silent about their discoveries of honey, and survey their treasure each morning before undertaking to gather it, while others less selfish would bring all their friends and relations to share in the feast. And of these big bees and ants the world generally ranks the secretive selfish fellow as the more "enterprising"—If not the more intelligent.—Ledger.

A TRUE GENTLEMAN.—A true man is above a mean thing. He cannot stoop to a mean fraud. He invades no secret in the keeping of another. He takes selfish advantage of no man's mistakes. He is ashamed of innuedoes. He uses no ignoble weapons in controversy. He never stabs in the dark. He is not one thing to a man's face and another to his back. If by accident he comes into possession of his neighbor's counsels, he passes upon them instant oblivion. He bears sealed packages without tampering with the wax. Papers not meant for his eye, whether they flutter in at the window, or lie open before him in unguarded exposure, are sacred to him. He profanes no privacy for others, however sound the sentry sleeps. Bolts and bars, locks and keys, bonds and securities, notice to trespassers, are not for him. He may be trusted out of sight anywhere. He buys no office, he sells none, intrigues for none. He would rather fail of his rights than win them through dishonor. He will eat honest bread. He insults no man. If he has a rebuke for another, he is straight forward, open and manly. He cannot descend to scurrility. Billingsgate don't lay on his track. Of woman and to her, he speaks with decency and respect. In short, whatever he judges honorable he practices toward every one.

There is a third silent party to all our bargains. The nature and soul of things takes on itself the guaranty of the fulfillment of every contract, so that the honest service cannot come to loss. If you serve an ungrateful master, serve him the more. Put God in your debt. Every stroke shall be rapid. The longer the payment is withholden, the better for you, for compound interest on compound interest is the rate and usage of this exchequer.

The brave only know how to forgive; it is the most refined and generous pitch of virtue human nature can arrive at. Cowards have done good and kind actions—cowards have fought, nay, sometimes even conquered; but a coward never forgave. It is not in his nature; the power of doing it flows only from strength and greatness of soul, conscious of its own force and security, and above the little temptations of resenting every fruitless attempt to interrupt its happiness.

The Postmaster-General said at the banquet given by the Chamber of Commerce, just held: "I have had occasion to see the New York City post-office send out 250,000 letters in a day—representing to the department over which I preside 40 per cent. of all the newspaper postage of this country, paying as it does $82,000 and Chicago's $18,000, Boston's $16,000, and Philadelphia's $12,000; representing a city that furnishes to the department over which I preside, 38 tons every day in letters and newspapers, exclusive of merchandise."

As a stranger was yesterday knocking at the door of a house on Second street, a boy came around the corner and inquired:

"Got any thing to sell?"

"Yes; I want to sell your mother a box of tooth paste."

"Might as well get off'n the steps," continued the boy, as a smile broke out around his mouth; "she's got store teeth, and she cleans 'em with a woolen rag."

When your mother is frying doughnuts, and you're hungry, it don't make any difference how her hair is combed, or if it is combed at all or not; just only tell her that you think she looks so han'some with her hair done up in that style, and she will feed you on hot doughnuts till you swell up like a toad.

Milwaukee needs a Bee. A sign there reads, "Shooin dun heer." Lancaster is more perfect in this respect; it has a very prominent sigh which reads—"Chark col for sail heir."

A girl only five years old, belonging to Milwaukee, walks a rope suspended thirty feet from the ground. A rope's end vigorously applied would be good for those who allow it.

The law of the pleasure in having done anything for another is that the one almost immediately forgets having gived, and the other remembers eternally having received.

Enemies spring up everywhere of their own accord. Friends are reared in the affections, and cease to be such as soon as they are removed from the conservators of the heart.

A word unspoken is a sword in the scabbard; a word uttered is a sword in another's hand.

The Columbian.

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

Friday, Aug. 20, 1875.

Notice.

At a meeting of the Democratic State Committee, in Harrisburg, March 4, 1875, the following resolution was adopted, viz.:

That the next Democratic State Convention, for the purpose of nominating candidates for Governor and State Treasurer, be held at the City of Erie, on Wednesday, the 8th day of September, 1875, at noon.

The Convention will consist of the usual number of delegates, viz: one delegate for each member of the Senate and House of Representatives. JOHN MILLER, Chairman.

It is a remarkable fact that, while not one ex-President is living, the wives of five of them survive—Mrs. Polk, Mrs. Filmore, Mrs. Tyler, Mrs. Lincoln, and Mrs. Johnson.

And now they have discovered that Philadelphia is built upon a formation of gold, the subsoil being estimated to contain over a hundred millions of the precious metal. It has long been recognised that its surface was covered with rags, rascals and vermin, as well as with other things, people and insects, and it is well therefore that it is discovered to have a desirable foundation.

Complete official returns from Kentucky give McCreery, Democrat, a majority of 36,139 for Governor. The Legislature stands Democrats 90, Republicans 10. The Republican candidate for Governor, Gen. Harlan, ran beyond his party strength, especially in the city of Louisville, where he resides, and where his father in former days had much personal strength.

Goldsmith Maid having ceased to "draw," the trotting race gamblers announce that she was beaten by Lulu, a new favorite with the jockeys, the best time of the latter being stated at 2.15½—jockey time. The public have been so much humbugged in this trotting business that little interest is excited by it now. The winning and the time is nearly always arranged before the horses come on the field.

Beecher is summering among the mountains in Maine, where he is overwhelmed with immense audiences whenever he preaches. Whatever other people may think about him or however moral people may regard such characters as he, the yankees are certainly ready to worship him. He is "smart" in more ways than one, and that is the sum of all merit with them.

A great deal of fault has been found with Old Probabilities on account of so much rain. Grant escapes blame, because he is not supposed to meddle much with water.—But the Louisville Courier-Journal accounts for the heavy wet by saying: "The truth is that a kind Providence, in answer to millions of prayers sent up during the past seven years, is making a protracted and determined effort to put a stop to playing the game known as base ball.

Hon. Horace Binney died in Philadelphia on the 12th inst. He was born in that city January 4, 1780, and was therefore in the 96th year of his age at death. He was admitted to the bar in March, 1800, and was a member of the Legislature in 1806-7. He was also a leading member of Congress from 1833 to 1835. He was a gentleman of high character and much Philadelphia distinction. He filled many positions of important public trust, and was always held in the highest esteem in his native city.

The State board of pardons is growing rapidly into a sort of burlesque court, where sympathy instead of proof of innocence voids punishment. The lawyer with a peck of tears stands no chance with his adversary of a bushel. Maudlin strains despoil justice of her attributes. It gives lawyers an additional field for splendid fees, forms a sort of rogue's harbor, and relieves the Governor of just responsibility and some unpleasant labor, and there the functions of this board of mercy cease.

It is not necessary for us to have discussion with the Philadelphia Commonwealth about the strength of epithets. No doubt any gentleman will despise "shabby" tricks as much as blackjacks, and of such the Erie Convention will be largely composed—just scallawags enough in it to attract attention, unless it shall wisely and bravely vote the most obnoxious of them out, including Bill. Dimmick and a considerable number from Philadelphia.

We have issued in supplementary form the speech of Hon. Franklin B. Gowan, before the Legislative committee charged with the investigation of the truth of certain allegations made against the Philadelphia and Reading railroad company. It is a speech of rare power and literary ability, and will be profitably and eagerly read by those interested in the subject. Of course we issue it as an advertisement. It receives an extensive circulation—all the Philadelphia papers containing it in their regular columns and all the county papers issuing it in the supplementary form. It may also be had in pamphlet form upon application to the railroad company.

No Coroner to Elect.

The nomination of Mr. Isaiah Yeager for Coroner, by the Democratic county convention last week, was a mistake. There is no Coroner to elect at this time, C. G Murphy, Esq., of Centralia, (where, by-the way, they need Coroners) having been elected last November and commissioned for three years. There was no disposition to take off the gallant Squire's official head, but the impression erroneously prevailed that he had not lifted his commission, and hence the new nomination. Under the circumstances we of course take Mr. Yeager's name from the ticket.

Northern Pacific Railroad.

This road, with all its privileges, franchises and property, was sold last week, in New York, to a "committee of bondholders," for $100,000. As the sale was on mortgage, all its debts, bonds and stock are now wiped out, and the small number of stock and bond holders represented in the purchasing committee are the only ones who will reap any benefit from the sale. There are, also, large bodies of western lands, appropriated by the government to the company, to be sold in September, but these will be gobbled up by the committee mentioned at a nominal price. The proceedings upon the whole will wipe out all claims against the company and pass the road with all its property into the hands of the few men who compose the firm of Jay Cooke & Co., and their friends and partners. People hereabouts who own bonds may receive a few cents upon them, but that is the best they can hope for.

State Treasurer.

From exchanges we learn that in case of the nomination of a western man for Governor by the Erie convention, Hon. George Sanderson, of Lancaster, will be urged for State Treasurer. There is no man in the State better qualified, of higher reputation for integrity, or more deserving of such a mark of Democratic favor. Always a most reliable Democrat and ever literally a wheelhorse for his party, and proverbially modest, he never pushed himself forward for position, and is now well stricken in years with little of this world's pelf to soothe his declining days or ensure him against the common needs of life. One of those faithful Democrats who sacrificed themselves to promote Mr. Buchanan to the Presidency, he was left with nearly all other hard-working, unselfish friends of that unsympathising statesman, who worked for him in season and out of season, to make their way as best they could against the open and secret enemies they made by the ardor and warmth with which they pressed his cause. While such as Forney and hundreds of others fell from this cause, Sanderson remained firm as adamant in the support of Democratic principles. Cold neglect by the successful chieftain neither soured him, nor sent him to the ranks of the enemy, nor, pouting, to an attitude of indifference to either personal friendship or Democratic success. On the other hand, he remained as firm a Democrat as ever and as faithful a personal friend to Mr. Buchanan as that distinguished statesman possessed. If the latter has friends now who hold him in grateful remembrance or patriotic regard they cannot better show it than by assisting to confer the high honor suggested upon his ever faithful and vigorous friend, Geo. Sanderson. Republics should not be ungrateful, nor should the friends of distinguished Republican statesmen.

We believe Mr. Sanderson never held any official position except that of Mayor of Lancaster. In that he discharged his duties most creditably and honorably, as he would in the position of State Treasurer. If an eastern candidate be nominated for Governor, of course Mr. Sanderson will be withdrawn as a candidate for Treasurer. Were the convention to nominate him for Governor there would be no occasion to growl about it.

The Rapacious Maw of Corporate Monopoly Still Yawning.

The Reading railroad company has made a proposition "to furnish the forty or more furnaces now out of blast along the Reading railroad and branches, with all the iron ore, limestone and coal, and to take the product off their hands, paying for the iron a reasonable profit on the cost of manufacture. The proposition, it is said, is being responded to favorably by the iron establishments, and there is a fair probability of all the furnaces being again in blast within a reasonable time." The Reading railroad company has already obtained a complete control and monopoly of the vast coal business of the Schuylkill region, and now essays to obtain similar power over the production of iron in that quarter. Of the success of its enterprize we suppose there is no question. Of the propriety of converting this grand once perfectly free country into a land of monopoly we are glad there is yet much difference of opinion. When it is probably too late the people will possibly wake up to the importance of the Jacksonian Democratic doctrine on the subject, and they will then, too, if not sooner, wake up to the fact that all the legislation of the Republican party that could influence the subject has been directed to the creation of monopolies, in a manner to abstract all power possible from the people, whom it has taxed and robbed, and robbed and taxed, with a promiscuous profusion that has rendered the terms inseparable if not symonymous in meaning. The mighty giant, the freeman's morally unrestrained will, one of these days will wake up to find himself bound hand and foot, and by every hair of his head, through the multifarious machinations of the Republican party and its interminable chain of rings. The starting of the furnaces is a good thing, but they will never rid themselves from the grasp of the monster that embraces them until that day of doom, sure to come, when the overloaded corporations must be crushed to earth by their own weight.

As illustrative of Reading railroad designs, here is an anecdote related to us: An intellectual looking gentleman in a passenger car of the company observed a boy selling matches. Calling the lad to him he inquired, kindly:

"How much do you make in a day selling matches?"

"Sometimes ten cents, some twenty, and sometimes even thirty cents, when I have good luck."

"Well, my lad," benevolently replied the gentleman, "make all you can this month; I am the President of this railroad company and on the first of next month, it is proper to inform you, we will assume this business ourselves!"

Moral—the Reading railroad company is a huge Anaconda that swallows all the game that comes in its reach.

We did not know that political lightning had struck anywhere outside of Bloomsburg, until we saw the announcement in the last Berwick Independent that Capt. John R. Yohe, of Mifflin, was a volunteer candidate for Associate Judge. The valorous Captain was the regular Democratic nominee for the position five years ago, but between a dislike of the practices by which he obtained a nomination and a failure to discern his merits and qualifications, the Democracy could not be very unanimously rallied to his support, and therefrom a double consequence has resulted, to wit: the Captain was then defeated and has now grown sanguinary. What other grave consequences are to follow we are too modest to undertake to foretell, and all that is sure about it is that he can at any time treat all his Democratic supporters to a ride in a single omnibus. It is not our business to interfere with the tastes of the Republicans, and if they choose to adopt him as a candidate we will charitably wish them joy of their morsel. Had their leaders been as smart as they think themselves they would have seen to his election five years ago, but that is beyond their power now and would result only to their own discredit if they could succeed.

But, gentlemen of the Republican persuasion, do not let the forlorn Captain "go it alone"—trot out a volunteer for Commissioner. You like that business of supporting volunteers—you now have two chances on the Commissioner question where there is usually only one, preserve your consistency, and out with a volunteer. No craftsman was ever in greater need of a tool than you are just now, and at no time could one be used more wisely—he could so nicely save the board from being marred by the presence of a Republican! Do not waste your ambition upon the bare election of John R. Yohe to an Associate Judgeship! Brave all fortune at once!

Assessors who have failed to post up an alphabetical list of voters in their various districts are liable to a penalty of one hundred dollars for their failure.

Hartranft and Temperance.

When John F. Hartranft was a candidate for Governor in 1872, the "liquor league" of this State suddenly turned into his support, and in a brief time it was ascertained that the leaders of the Republican party had made a solemn engagement not only to prevent future legislation in hostility to the sale and use of liquor as a beverage, but also agreed that they as a party would throw no impediment in the way of the repeal of the local option law. They in fact promised to repeal that law, if they should possess the power. The leaders thus pledged themselves personally, but of course could not pledge their party followers. To this arrangement Mr. Hartranft gave his consent, the consideration for all which being that the liquor league was to support Hartranft for Governor. After he became Governor, not a word did he or his personal counsellors, including all the leading Republican politicians, utter against the repeal of the local option law. When the repeal bill passed the Legislature the Temperance men unanimously protested against the Governor signing it. They were joined in this by the clergymen of the Methodist church then assembled in conference at Huntingdon. Their resolution of protest passed, we believe, unanimously. Most of the clergy of the State joined in the protest, or were known to be opposed to repeal. All this formidable array of protest had no more weight and received no more consideration than though it had come from so many prattling boys who had not yet trusted themselves beyond the mother's apron string. The reason was obvious—Gov. Hartranft's hands were tied—the pledge to the "liquor league" dare not be broken. He signed the repealing bill and local option became a thing of the past, without giving it the decent respect of a second judgment of the people at the ballot-box.

We make no pretence that the Democracy are a temperance party. That party believes in leaving all moral questions to be determined by moral means. It is against all legislation that interferes with personal desires, except so far as is necessary to restrain men from doing bodily injury to each other or wrong to each other's property or rights. It passes and sustains no sumptuary laws and in no wise invades the domestic circle. It leaves moral means to accomplish moral ends. It believes in God's power to control His people. As to mere earthly (political) affairs it assumes to control only so far as is absolutely necessary. It believes that the less the people are governed (politically) the better. It oppresses no one and intrudes upon no one. It is a party of political rights and proprieties and refuses to go beyond these.

The Republican party has different principles. It pretends to reach all the wants of humanity and to accomplish by legislation all that can be hoped for from morals. It would control every individual at the will of its leaders and dictate to him if it could whether he should take his provender with a spoon or a fork, and when he should take meat and when mush, or neither or both, and as to either quantity or quality. In other words, it essays the right to control men by legislation in whatever it chooses to control—to dictate morals and tastes, as well as the exercise of rights or the pursuit of pleasure or profit.

While the Democratic party, therefore, denies that questions of morals are proper subjects of legislative direction, the Republican party assumes to dictate by that means in all that relates to human existence. These generalities explain why the Democracy have no responsibility in connection with temperance legislation and why the Republican party is responsible. The latter party promised its aid and support to the Temperance cause, but in the supreme hour of trial, Gov. Hartranft turned his back upon his party principles to give victory to anti-temperance, because, for the consideration of a few thousand votes, he had secretly pledged himself to do so! There was infamy in that act because it embraced treachery—the betrayal of friends and the betrayal of a cause. It was corrupt because treacherous, done in secret, without the knowledge of the main body of his supporters, and for personal and selfish ends. The bargain was a base one in all its phases.

Under these circumstances is it any wonder that honest Temperance Republicans set up Republican candidates of their own way of thinking and sternly repudiate Hartranft? Why should Republican editors abuse them for refusing to support a candidate who bargains with their leading enemies for their votes, and supplies the power to defeat and repeal their favorite laws? Hartranft has proven himself the enemy of a principle these men hold dear, and he has treated them and their petitions with utter contempt. If they have the spirit of "freemen who know their rights and dare maintain them," they will repudiate Gov. Hartranft at the ballot box.

A curious fight is maintained against giving our Susquehanna salmon their proper name, that by which they have been called ever since they have been known. The most recent effort we notice in a legal proceeding at Sunbury, where they are described as "pike-perch," a sort of elephant-mustard arrangement. The Sunbury American enlightens us with the information that "the court decided it had no jurisdiction," but whether this decision applied to the offence charged or especially to "pike-perch," its readers are left sadly in the dark. "Pike-perch" is decidedly good, but why not call him a salmon-eel? Man is sometimes described as "a quadruped that walks erect," and at others as a "biped without feathers." Doubtless either will answer the purpose of description, yet the animal in question is not a quadruped and he is not the only biped that is featherless. Upon the same principle why is it not proper to double up the names of two other varieties of fish and apply them in the singular number to another that you do not wish to call by its right name?

The last effort on the northern line, that came under our notice, to change the name of the Susquehanna salmon, was to call him an Otsego bass, because some kind of white fish is found in Otsego lake that bears a resemblance to him. Even were the fish ideniical it would be difficult to see why Otsego should have preference to Susquehanna, or why the name of the mushy bass should be used in preference to that of the flakey salmon, which latter the flesh of our Susquehanna salmon so exactly resembles except that it is not of a roseate color when boiled. "Pickerel" has at last taken its appropriate place among the meaningless vulgarities and is no longer put forward as an example of yankee ingenuity in discovering fugitive words.

Come down, and let the noblest and rarest of our Susquehanna fish enjoy his name—the baptismal of his locality and the surname of his species.

The Ohio Democrats are confident of victory. Thus the Cincinnati Enquirer says: "It is unnecessary to argue the question. The election of Allen is conceded by the most intelligent men in this end of the State. Against him there are no wagers worth taking"

The Democratic Gubernatorial Nomination.

As the fall county conventions are being held, delegates are also being rapidly appointed to the Erie convention. A large majority go without instructions. Chester gave unanimous instructions for R. E. Monaghan, of that county, who made a thrilling speech in return, from which we may make extracts hereafter.

Judge Ross, of Montgomery county, has recently been looming up into prominence as a competitor for the nomination, but his own county elected four out of six delegates who are for Dr. E. L. Acker, of the same county.

Col. Noyes has carried several of the northwestern counties unanimously, and will exhibit considerable strength at Erie. He is also prominently mentioned for State Treasurer. He is just now more interested in saw logs and lumber than in delegates.

Indiana, Venango and some other counties have instructed for Gov. Bigler.

Judge Dreher will have some strength in the northeastern counties. Judge Pershing will have Schuylkill, Cambria and some other counties in those localities. D. M. Fox will have a majority of the Philadelphia delegates, and a large number of scrub candidates have obtained instructions in the counties where they reside. Possibly some one not yet named may carry off the honor at Erie.

It will be the duty of the Erie convention to nominate the fit candidate who can obtain the most votes at the election, and the delegates should scorn to cast their votes selfishly or in the interest of faction. A grave responsibility rests on the gentlemen who have been elected delegates and no doubt is entertained that generally at least they will discharge their duties in an honorable and manly way.

The Democrats of Centre county have nominated Hon. P. Gray Meek, the vigilant and able editor of the Bellefonte Watchman, for State Senator, to succeed Hon. W. A. Wallace. Although violently opposed Mr. Meek was unanimously nominated by the convention of his county. One of his opponents went even to the extent, probably by the instigation of others, of committing an assault upon him by striking him while writing a telegraphic despatch. As Meek is neither tall nor broad, and we suspect could not turn a scale against a hundred pound weight, a more cowardly act could scarcely be imagined. The fellow who did it narrowly escaped mobbing by taking himself out of the way. The excitement and general feeling of resentment was intense. Except for the fact that some of our old friends in Clinton (among the best of counties) are candidates, Meek ought to be nominated in the district. He is a brilliant star and (except physically) is an aggressive and successful warrior. Though not an orator he is a very active, efficient and experienced legislator.

Every Democrat should bear in mind that any one who now attempts to produce or promote discord, by fomenting opposition to or prejudice against Democratic candidates or against active members of the party, means injury to the party itself and is probably doing it more harm than if he were an open enemy. At the next election the Democrats will need every vote for their State ticket that they can possibly poll, and to this end entire harmony should prevail, so that the energies of every one can be directed to acquiring every possible vote for the State ticket. As we said last week, when an army is on the eve of a great battle it is no time to collect beef bills from the individual soldiers.

Government Lands Gone.

It is an open question whether, under the rule of the Republican party, all of the public lands belonging to the United States have not been appropriated. If not, the balance will be swallowed up within a very brief period, and this will be the end of cheap lands for the rising population of the future United States. We cut the following from a Republican newspaper published at Columbus, Nebraska:

The Commissioner of the General Land office announces that at the current rate of entries, all the soil belonging to the United States available for agriculture and grazing will be taken up within the next five years. This is a most significant prediction and its bearing on the land business of Nebraska is most important; for, speaking in general terms, the dividing line between the grain and grazing regions of the immense West passes north and south through Kearney. There is some farming land west of the meridian and very much land east of it better adapted to grazing than to grain.

The pastoral and mineral belts that include the west half of Nebraska and Dakota and all of Colorado and Wyoming will act as a wall from which the heavy wave of agriculturists will ebb, for there is in the whole migratory world as ingular disposition to rush to the front, even if it shall be found expedient to turn back a few miles or leagues. Millions of acres of lands are in the hands of three principal firms of Columbus, Speice & North, S. C. Smith and Taylor & Rouston. These lands, embracing every variety, improved and unimproved, are for sale on the most liberal terms.

S. C. Smith and Speice & North are coordinately agents for the Union Pacific lands in this region. Rouston is agent for the lands of the Burlington and Missouri river railroad, in Platte, Boone, and the south half of Madison counties, while Taylor has the lands of the Midland Pacific, the Omaha and North Western, and the Elkhorn Valley, besides the immense tracts of Clark & Craig and other land holders in the counties of Cuming, Stanton, Madison and Antelope.

Governor Allen, the present and the next Governor of Ohio, recently made a speech at Parkersburg, West Virginia, in which occur these ringing sentences. Every man, of whatever political faith, who earns his bread by honest labor, ought to commit the extract to memory and repeat it as he goes to the polls:

"We are about, on our side of the river, to engage in a State election; and if it were a State election and nothing else, the people on this side of the river would take very little interest in it. But it is a State election that has reference to a great approaching National struggle, that will by its determination settle the great question whether the American people shall be free and independent, or slaves to the meanest despotism that the world has ever contained—the despotism of the money power—[applause]—the despotism of avarice, the basest and most merciless passion in the human heart. A Government in the hands of stock-jobbers and brokers, who have no other object than to rule that they may rob, is the worst Government in the world. [Applause.] That is the power we are fighting, that is the power we mean to rebuke, and over which we are sworn to triumph."

The Sinking Fund of the State of New York amounting to $8,885,444 is invested in State and United States stocks and earns a yearly interest which is added to the fund and offsets the interest on an equal amount of the State debt. If the Treasury management in Pennsylvania was honest that portion of our Sinking Fund which does not consist of railroad securities would be regularly invested in State or United States bonds. There is no law to prevent it and it needs no law to authorise it. There is no law to authorise the deposit of State funds in private banks without interest, yet it is done without warrant of law and to the detriment of the public interest.—Patriot.

What Has Become of the Impeachers?

Let us see what has happened to these men in the order in which they are printed. Mr. Anthony has been re-elected from a State in which a property qualification is necessary to voters, and the firm of Brown & Ives which he represents rather than the State has come to naught. Simon Cameron has lost Pennsylvania and will be of no more account in politics, now that corruption has been struck down in him. Alex. Catell has been left at home and is now known as the naval ring is known. Zack. Chandler has been defeated permanently. Cole. of California, is a sturdy office beggar succeeded by a Democrat. Mr. Conkling sees New York 50,000 Democratic and himself without a following except that which he keeps in office. John Conness has followed his colleague, Cole. Mr. Frelinghuysen finds New Jersey and himself with saparate careers. Harlan has been ruined by disclosures of Credit Mobilier, and he is infamously rich. Howard, of Michigan, was first defeated and then died of a horrible accident. Morgan, of New York, was put to a double degradation. He was defeated by R. E. Fenton. Cragin is a barnacle on the Navy, and Williams has been retired for the corruption of his family and the incompetency of himself. Mr. Morton sees Indiana repudiate him and his party by 23,000 majority. Pomeroy goes out all over corrupt. Ramsey was defeated by his own party. Sherman has lived to see Ohio 27,000 Democratic on a Congress vote. Sprague has failed in both politics and business. Stewart, of Nevada, survives as the product and horrible example of rotten borough politics to see worse jobbers than himself succeed him. Corbett has been sent back to retail shop-keeping in Oregon. Drake has been buried in the Court of Claims, and finds Frank Blair honored, though dead, and himself execrated, though alive, by Missouri. Mr. Edmunds and the two Morrills seem exceptions to retribution. They have not lost their seats nor their States, but the country has repudiated their party. Poor Nye is in a mad house. Ferry, of Connecticut, is a hopeless invalid and his State has repudiated his party, too. Patterson has retired, disgraced with Credit Mobilierism. Sumner died by inches amidst terrors, soured, dishonored and repudiated by his own party. Thayer, Tipton and Wiley are not even remembered. Henry Wilson is a victim of a terrible, self-inflicted malady and Massachusetts has parted company with him. Wade has sunk into a senile lobbyist, and Yates died in a condition not necessary to recall. —Exchange.

Who Has Our Money?

Elsewhere will be found the statement of Auditor General Temple, showing the taxpayers where State Treasurer Mackey keeps the public funds. Mackey's own bank, the Alleghany National, at Pittsburg, has nearly three hundred thousand dollars, and a concern in Philadelphia, termed the People's Bank, owned by Bill Kemble and his Pilgrim Ring, has three hundaed and seventy-two thousand dollars. There are no more "scaly" institutions in the United States than the two just named; compel them to pay over to the State what they owe and they are bankrupt.

The large balance of from one to two millions of dollars, which has been kept in the State Treasury for the past twelve years, has been used by the treasury ring for banking purposes, and the members of this Pilgrim ring have coined millions out of this banking capital, and not one dollar of these large profits have been returned to the State treasury.

To know that this huge palpable fraud has been successfully perpetrated upon the taxpayers of Pennsylvania for a dozen of years, gives evidence of the moral depravity and commercial deadness of the people, who, in a single day, could turn every robber out without firing a gun.—Clearfield Republican.

Three Remarkable Things.

It is remarkable that no Republican newspaper ventures to defend or deny the complicity of Governor Hartranft in the robbery of the Sinking Fund, without authority of law, in defiance of a constitutional prohibition, and against the tenor of his official oath.

It is no less remarkable that no Republican newspaper has ventured to defend Governor Hartrant's veto of the fee bill, a measure made necessary by the new Constitution, which cut down the enormous salaries of certain Republican officials in the State.

It is equally remarkable that no Republican paper has explained his approval of the repeal of the Sinking Fund act of 1870, which made it necessary for the State Treasurer to report to the Auditor General the names of the corporations and persons with whom the public moneys were deposited once every month. Under the law approved by Governor Hartranft, May 9, 1874, the unrestrained custody of the moneys in the Sinking Fund is given to the State Treasurer, without any knowledge or assurance upon the part of any other officer of the State that such moneys are safely or properly bestowed.—Patriot.

Radical Ring Robbery.

In his exhibit of the Sinking Fund and where deposited, Treasurer Mackey says $3,896.48 are in the Bank of Commerce, Erie, Pa., and $7,214.50 in the Venango National Bank, Franklin, Pa.—total $11,120.98. The Venango Spectator reminds the people that both these banks are utterly broken, and we believe both have been out of business for some time past. How many more of Mr. Mackey's pet banks are broken we are not informed. If he were to attempt to collect the 30,000 dollars Jacob E. Ridgeway has held for the last twelve years there would be a buzz in the Radical ring hive that would be refreshing. There are many other sums in the list a demand for which would raise a war in the ring family. Yet upon the large amount of money these Radical ring pets hold—averaging two millions of dollars—the people are required to pay the annual interest in cash. This is why it is necessary to tax coal, and to toll every bushel of wheat the farmer sells, or dollar's worth of store goods he buys (by tax on the gross receipts of railroads.) The people pay—the Radical treasury ring reaps the fruits, and the above loss of $11,000 will be paid by the people, taken indirectly from the taxes imposed upon and paid by them.

Fractional Currency.—It is supposed that a large percentage, perhaps one-fourth of the fractional currency has been destroyed by various accidents, and the government will doubtless gain a considerable sum by the failure, neglect or inability of the transient owners of this portion of its paper issues to return them for redemption. It is probable that ten or twelve millions of dollars may be realized by the national treasury in this manner, but of all forms of raising money this is one of the most discreditable. It exposes the people to a great deal of inconvenience and final loss mainly through a neglect of the government to perform what is one of its most important functions in ordinary times—the coinage of small denominations of metallic money to serve as a circulating medium for all the small transactions of the community. The government thus profits by its own money, at the expense of the people.—Exchange.

That the United States are to have this year an abundant crop of corn, all reports agree. An increased acreage of eight per cent. has been planted, and the crop (although backward in the spring) is now getting on finely and promises a good yield. The cautious Agricultural Department report for July indicates almost an average yield of corn, and since the data upon which that report is based were collected the conditions in nearly all parts of the country have been extremely favorable for increasing the yield. With cheap and abundant food, the facilities for fattening beef and pork will be increased, thus giving cheap provisions. We may therefore anticipate an abundant stock for the coming season, and in addition to bread stuffs, can consequently spare large quantities of pork, beef, lard, butter, cheese and other similar articles for our customers in Europe, and thus equalize the exchanges, which will go further towards improving the finances than all the pet notions of the fancy financiers.—Philad'a. Ledger.

To satisfy numerous inquiries, and to set at rest the assertions that William Bigler is a very old man, we have taken the pains to ascertain his age correctly. He was born in Cumberland county, in December 1813, and is consequently in the sixty-second year of his age. Forty years ago he worked on the farm of Lewis Egbert, in Mercer county, father of Dr. Egbert, out present member of Congress. He was a full hand in the harvest field. Twenty years later he was the Governor of this grand old Commonwealth, and a better executive Pennsylvania never had.—Venango Spectator.

Poor Financiering.—The Washington administrators have succeeded in extinguishing one million two hundred thousand dollars of our "national blessing" during the month of July; so Radical newspapers inform us. During the same period the people paid into the treasury over three millions of extra taxes under the March tax law, the proceeds of which were to be "applied to the extinguishment of the public debt." Well, this is a peculiar way of extinguishing that blessing. To give our agent $3 to pay on a note of $21, and he succeeds in having only $1.12 endorsed thereon, looks like slow redemption; yet this is the way our agents do business at Washington.—Clearfield Republican.

The London Times, in its obituary article on Andrew Johnson, says his career illustrates both the strong and weak points of the American social and political systems. During his term of office he showed himself wanting in tact, refinement, and knowledge of men. Yet he had some qualities which are not so abundant in American politics as to be despised when found. He had courage, some political insight, and honesty never shadowed by suspicion.

The report of the Allegheny county delegates to the Temperance convention at Altoona contains this sentiment:

We hope to hear no more of this wailing cry, you will break up the Republican party or you ought to preserve the Republican party, but hope to see every one convinced that the Republican party, like the brazen serpent, having accomplished all the good it was intended to, and having now become an object of idolatrous worship by hungry office seekers, should now be destroyed as injurious to the best intererts of our country.

Worked Over.—State Superintendent Wickersham succeeded in saving $3,000 to the State Treasury last week, by frightening the school directors of McKean county into reasonable measures. Those directors, in May last at their triennial convention, raised the County Superintendent's salary to $2,000. A movement on the part of the State authorities, similar to Sheridan's Louisiana affair, persuaded the directors to re-assemble and undo their May job so far as the salary was concerned, which by a vote of 58 to 10 was reduced to $1,000.—Clearfield Republican.

There are too many mechanics out of employment, too many smokeless chimneys, too many coal mines with deserted shafts, and too many men loafing about X-roads with nothing to do and no prospect of anything to augur well for the party under whose regime all these troubles have come about. Platforms go for very little when men are hungry and the rent of the cottage unpaid.—Exchange.

Excerpts and News Items from Exchanges.

O'Leary has failed in his second trial to walk 150 miles in thirty-two hours. We are patient with O'Leary's performance because he walked away with Weston's conceit and we hear no more of him.

The Grangers will have to include in their plan of operations the establishment of banks. The California Grangers lost $100,000 by the failure of E. Morgan's Son. Middlemen cannot be any more safely trusted with the management of money than with transactions in grain, cattle and other agricultural merchandise.

The Louisville Courier-Journal thinks "if good sense prevails over partisan recklessness the suggestion of Senator Thurman will be followed, and the question of national finances will be laid aside as one of those questions affecting the business prosperity of the country which Congress should be allowed to handle undisturbed by considerations of party feeling and party discipline."

Republican papers boast that no defalcation is found in the State Treasury. Mackey has had ever since last winter to put his accounts in shape. But why did he deny the House Investigating Committee and their expert access to his books several months ago? It won't do to say that they had not the proper authority. If his accounts were all right, why not allow anybody to look at them? The matter had a suspicious appearance at the time, and has yet.

The old Know Nothing leaders in Baltimore, mainly Custom-house and Post-office officials, are trying to revive that defunct order. It is the only dodge left them, and will amount to nothing but defeat and discomfiture, as it did before.

The Radical papers say that John Morrissey, the gambler, has risen above the Democracy and been kicked out of the Tammany organization. When Tammany had him it was abused for keeping him, and when it discards him it is abused for letting him go.

Excluding the interest on the public debt, the cost of the Grant management to the country is $276,000,000 for the year ending June 30th. This is at the rate of over three quarters of a million dollars per day. Is it any wonder the people complain?

There is one noticeable feature in Senator Morton's Urbana speech. He failed to bestow any personal abuse on Gov. Allen. He tried that two years ago, and with a single speech Gov. Allen drove him out of the State. Morton has profited by experience.

The Erie Observer says Mr. Rawle the Pilgrim candidate for State Treasurer assures his old time democratic friends that he is "not much of a republican." The fact that he is the ring candidate proves that he is "not much of a democrat." He makes no claim to be much of a temperance man. In fact Mr. Rawle doesn't seem to be much of anything.

Senator Morton, last winter, spoke of greenbacks as "battle born." Yes they were used to pay the soldiers' orphans and widows, but now according to the Republicans, the "battle born" greenbacks are "rag babies," "sham money," and "national lies." This is ingratitude to their own bantling.

MR. E. L. MYERS, collector for the COLUMBIAN, will wait upon those indebted to this office for the purpose of receiving the amounts due. We trust that those indebted will be prepared to pay what they owe when he calls, but if not, they will again be called upon. It will scarcely be demanded of us to offer an apology for making collections, but for the satisfaction of those desiring it we will just say that as we have to pay cash for every thing as we go our purse is not long or deep enough to hold out unless it is replenished with some degree of promptness.

The rain, the rain, the beautiful rain.

Oysters will be in season next month.

The trout fishing season ended on the 15th instant.

A colored camp meeting is in progress near Milton.

Peaches are very plenty in our market, and selling at $1.25 per crate.

The indications are that the apple crop will be an abundant one this fall.

Col. A. D. Seely, of Berwick, had charge of the police force at the Mountain Grove camp meeting.

Somebody in Montour county (the American says) thinks the Republicans "will be successful at the poles." Well, who cares—especially at the north pole!

About 5,000 people were in attendance at the Mountain Grove camp meeting last Sunday, towards which number Bloomsburg contributed largely.

Three cold blooded murders where committed on Saturday last, respectively at Girardville, Shenandoah, and Mahanoy city, Schuylkill co. There are also rumors of one or more murders in the coal regions of this county on Saturday.

Some of our exchanges are gravely cautioning people against stepping on water melon rinds. Nevertheless it is often a source of amusement to see a high-headed nice young man step on one!

CAMP MEETING.—The Columbia circuit of the Evangelical Association will hold a camp meeting on the land of Joseph Conner, four miles east of Light Street, commencing August 26th and to continue one week. 2t

The Lutheran Sunday School of Catawissa held a basket pic nic in Knorr's Grove below town on last Thursday. A large number were in attendance and despite the rain a good time was had.

An Indiana court has decided that a single woman under marriage engagement with several young men at the same time, may maintain an action against each for breach of promise, if no one marries her! Let gallants be warned!

A cent has accidentally fallen into our possession bearing the date of 1719, as nearly as we can make it out. As coin of that date is exceedingly scarce, any reputable collector of old pieces can have it by calling for it, and establishing himself as a numismatic caterer.

The editorial correspondent of the Danville American ought to know that Bloomsburg is not now and never was "incorporated under a borough charter." "The Town of Bloomsburg" is the official and legal designation of this embryo city.

14,298,000 postal cards were issued during the month of July on the requisition of postmasters. This is a larger number issued than in any one month before. It is estimated that nearly 115,000,000 cards will be used during this year.

We direct the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Edward J. Evans & Co., Nurserymen and Seedsmen, of York, Pa., who offer an unusually large variety of articles in this line of business for the fall trade. We have done considerable business with this firm and have found them reliable in every respect.

It is eminently due the postal service to say that the northern mails carried by the Northern Central and Lackawanna and Bloomsburg railroads did not fail on Tuesday morning last, notwithstanding the tremendous rain and severe lightning and thunder. We congratulate the officials concerned in their triumph over the elements, for once.

Persons residing elswhere who visit Bloomsburg all speak of evident signs of prosperity which they fail to discover in any other town. Considerable building, of substantial and tasty character, has been going on all summer and is still in progress. All agree that Bloomsburg is a very pretty, cleanly, healthful and agreeable town, as well as a prosperous one. A large amount of manufacturing, conducted by individual enterprise and industry, is carried on in the town. The superiority of this system over large manufacturing establishments is palpable.

The popular superstition of centuries ago, that if it rained on St. Swithin's day, showers would continue for forty days, has held good at least this year. Of the old Saxon we have this history. St. Swithin, Bishop of Winchester, and tutor to King Alfred was canonized by the Roman Catholic church. He is said to have wrought many miracles, the most celebrated being a rain of forty days continuance, by which he testified his displeasure at an attempt of the monks to bury him in the chancel of the ministry, instead of the open church-yard, as he had directed. Hence the popular superstition, that if it rains on St. Swithin's day (July 15), it will rain for forty days thereafter.

A runaway marriage recently took place in a palace car of the Northern central railway, immediately after the train left for Baltimore. The hero of the occasion was a popular conductor on the line and the heroine a daughter of one of the most repatable citizens of Northumberland. The father of the bride was opposed to the match and the movements of the daughter were closely watched. The conductor was observed to have passed west on his train that morning, as usual, and until the proper time of return of that train the bird was therefore esteemed safe. The conductor, however, on meeting the train bound south changed places with the conductor of the latter, but did not exhibit himself at Northumberland. In the meantime the lady had obtained consent and purchased a ticket for Sunbury, ostensibly to pay a short visit to a friend at that place, from whence she proceeded on the train without a ticket or paying fair, contrary to the rules prescribed to ordinary passengers. Immediately after leaving Sunbury, the pair, who were standing together in the magnificent palace car, chatting pleasantly, were approached by Rev. Dr. Gibson, who having had much experience in that line of business and was therefore supposed to be thoroughly qualified, proceeded by a short but impressive and most binding process to make them man and wife, which, being fully accomplished, the happy pair now unitized were congratulated heartily by the passengers generally. We withhold the names by request—nevertheless the hero and heroess of the occasion are man and wife. He is a trump.

And now the housewife wildly sings,
While round her buzz the little wings,
Over the cakes and other things;
"I feel, I feel as if I'd die—
Out of that butter—off that pie!
O, dear, O, dear! the more I try,
I can but cry, 'Shoo, fly! Shoo, fly!'"

We are informed that a passenger train will run from Catawissa to Milton next Sunday, over the Philadelphia and Reading railroad, for the accommodation of those wishing to attend colored camp meeting.

On last Wednesday a week the team of I. W. McKelvey whilst standing at the L. & B. R. R. depot, became frightened at a passing train, and ran out Sixth street at a furious rate until they overtook a wagon loaded with hard ore, when one of the horses jumped upon the wagon and the other one was caught by the side of the wagon. The horses were hurt more or less and the wagon was considerably damaged.

L. F. Copeland, a sensational preacher, who held forth and cut a considerable splash in Bloomsburg a year ago last winter, and who was then represented to be a "much married man," though passing himself off as unmarried, was tarred and feathered in Knoxville, Tennessee, on Monday last (16th inst.) No other violence was offered. He was denounced there as a swindler, confidence man, &c., and is said to have called himself by different names in different localities. He was about being married to a highly respectable young lady of Knoxville, but the mob put an end to that piece of amusement. He is under indictment for some of his crimes, it is stated, but where or what for we are not informed.

The G. F. N. B. B. C., of this place indulged in a match game of base ball on the Fair ground with a club of the same title from Wilkes-Barre, on last Friday afternoon. The game was merely a sociable one and not for the championship of the State or a bag of gold. The result of the game in favor of the home nine is due to the fact that three or four of its members had played ball before, while those of the Wilkes-Barre nine had never played. The suits of the W.-B. club were very handsome and all alike, while of those of the Bloomsburg boys there were no two suits that corresponded. The game afforded a great deal of amusement to the participants and spectators. The match closed at the ending of the eighth innings in order that the visiting club might return to their home. The following is the score.

AN ERROR CORRECTED.

CENTRALIA, August 16th, 1875.

Editor of THE COLUMBIAN:

I see in your issue of the 13th, in the proceedings of the convention, a mistake which I would like to have corrected. It is stated that the seat of John Crane was contested by Thomas Ennis. It is just the contrary. My seat was contested by John Crane. Please correct and oblige. Yours, &c., THOMAS ENNIS.

O. U. A. M. AT BUCK HORN.

BUCK HORN, August 16th, 1875.

To the Editor of THE COLUMBIAN:

A pic nic was held near Buck Horn on Saturday, August 14th, under the auspices of the O. U. A. M. Members met at their Hall at ten and-a-half o'clock a. m., formed in procession and preceded by martial music, paraded to the grove. On motion, Bro. Jas. M. Eder, from Blue Ridge Council, No. 272, O. U. A. M., was made President, Bros. Matthias Girton, Daniel Wanich and Amzi Whitenight, from Bloomsburg Council, No. 146, Vice Presidents, and Fred B. Hartman, of 212, Secretary. The opening ode was sang and prayer offered by Rev. J. M. Reimensnyder, from Lewistown, our former pastor of this Lutheran charge. A short but appropriate address was made by Bro. D. R. Appleman, after which all present were invited to partake of a bountiful repast, prepared by the mechanic's wives and others. Then vocal music and a very eloquent and pointed address by the Rev. J. M. Reimensnyder, followed by John Hartman, Esq., and Bro. Wm. H. Shoemaker, interspersed by vocal and instrumental music. The programme being filled, the procession formed and marched back to the Hall, all feeling that it was good to be there. The members of Buck Horn Council, No. 212, O. U. A. M., tender a vote of thanks to the speakers; also to the ladies and friends of the order, through whose kindness the table was so bountifully supplied. F. B. H.

WINE PRODUCTS OF NEW JERSEY.

This State is becoming celebrated for grape culture. Some of the richest port in the world is produced in New Jersey by Mr. Alfred Speer, whose name has become celebrated as a producer of strictly pure unadulterated wine. The Port Grape Wine of Mr. Speer is not bottled or put in market until it is four years old, and has become thoroughly fine and mellow. It has proved itself a wonderful assistant to physicians, who prescribe it from the fact that they have hitherto found it difficult to obtain a pure Port Wine. This Wine is recommended for debilitated persons; and is given to consumptives to use with fresh raw eggs, and as a medium for taking cod liver oil. The difficulty of getting an imported or even a pure California Port is well understood to be so great as to preclude Doctors from allowing their patients to run the risk of its use. Mr. Speer being aware of this fact has taken the utmost care in the making of his wine from the ripest and finest grapes, so as to supply the imported wines by produceing a genuine article. His wines are known by chemists to be pure and the most reliable for medical purposes. The Druggists throughout the country sell it, as bottled by Mr. Speer.—Chronicle

WHERE TO ADVERTISE.

A. T. Stewart says the best advertising mediums he has ever found "are the old established organs of the two political parties, at the several county seats throughout the Union." "These," he says "reach every family of the least account in their several counties, and are more carefully read than any other class of journals." If Mr. Stewart's judgment is of value, there is no difficulty in deciding which paper it is for the interest of business men to advertise in. THE COLUMBIA DEMOCRAT, upon which this paper is partially founded, was established in 1836, and the COLUMBIAN now enjoys a wider circulation and greater prosperity than it ever did. It goes regularly into two thousand families in Columbia and adjoining counties, and by most of them is read from the first to the last line. It is the only recognized exponent of nearly five thousand Democratic voters in the county. It gives advertisements a tasty display, that makes them attractive to its patrons, thus ensuring greater certainty that they will peruse them. While its circulation is undoubtedly much the largest in the county, the advertising rates of the COLUMBIAN are no higher than those of other papers with barely half and several not one-fourth the number of subscribers. Facts like these speak for themselves. No shrewd business man will neglect to insert his advertisements in the COLUMBIAN tf.

THANKS "FROM THE DEPTHS OF THE HEART."

WELLINGTON, Lorain Co., O., Aug. 24, 1874.

Dr. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.:

Dear Sir—Your medicines, Golden Medical Discovery, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, have proved of the greatest service to me. Six months ago no one thought that I could possibly live long. I had a complication of diseases,—scrofula, manifesting itself in eruptions and great blotches on my head that made such sores that I could not have my hair combed without causing me much suffering; also causing swollen glands, tonsils enlarged, enlarged or "thick neck," and large and numerous boils. I also suffered from a terrible Chronic Catarrh, and in fact I was so diseased that life was a burden to me. I had tried many doctors with no benefit. I finally procured one-half dozen bottles of your Golden Medical Discovery and one dozen Sage's Catarrh Remedy and commenced their use. At first I was badly discouraged, but after taking four bottles of the Discovery I began to improve, and when I had taken the remaining I was well. In addition to the use of Discovery I applied a solution of Iodine to the Goitre or thick neck, as you advise in pamphlet wrapping, and it entirely disappeared. Your Discovery is certainly the most wonderful blood medicine ever invented. I thank God and you, from the depths of my heart, for the great good it has done me.

Very gratefully, MRS. L. CHAFFEE.

Most medicines which are advertised as blood purifiers and liver medicines contain either mercury, in some form, or potassium and iodine variously combined. All of these agents have strong tendency to break down the blood corpuscles, and debilitate and otherwise permanently injure the human system, and should therefore be discarded. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, on the other hand, being composed of the fluid extracts of native plants, barks and roots, will in no case produce injury, its effects being strengthening and curative only. Sarsaparilla, which used to enjoy quite a reputation as a blood purifier, is a remedy of thirty years ago, and may well give place as it is doing, to the more positive and valuable vegetable alteratives which later medical investigation and discovery has brought to light. In Scrofula or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammation, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin and Sore Eyes as in all other blood diseases. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has shown its great remedial powers, curing the most obstinate and intractable cases. Sold by all dealers in medicines.

—o—

Many who are suffering from the effects of the warm weather and are debilitated, are advised by physicians to take moderate amounts of whisky two or three times during the day. In a little while those who adopt this advice frequently increase the number of "drinks," and in time become confirmed inebriates. A beverage which will not create thirst for intoxicating liquors, and which is intended especially for the benefit of debilitated persons, whether at home or abroad, is Dr. Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic. Containing the juices of many medicinal herbs, this preparation does not create an appetite for the intoxicating cup. The nourishing and the self-supporting properties of many valuable natural productions contained in it and well known to medical men have a most strengthening influence. A single bottle of the Tonic will demonstrate its valuable qualities. For debility arising from sickness, over exertion or from any cause whatever, a wineglassful of Sea Weed Tonic taken after meals will strengthen the stomach and create an appetite for wholesome food. To all who are about leaving their homes, we desire to say that the excellent effects of Dr. Schenck's seasonable remedies, Sea Weed Tonic, and Mandrake Pills, are particularly evident when taken by those who are injuriously affected by a change of water and diet. No person should leave home without taking a supply of these safeguards along. For sale by all Druggists.

PURIFY THE SPRINGS OF LIFE.

It is a sine qua non of health, that the sources of vitality, the "springs of life," should be free from contamination. The fluids which, by their action upon the food, transforms it into blood, and the great vital nutriment itself, must be pure, if the muscles, the bones and the brain are to be properly nourished and kept vigorous. To this end the stomach, the liver, the bowels and the kidneys should perform uninterruptedly their various functions, since if these are disturbed the vital fluids speedily become vitiated. The best, nay, the ONLY blood depurent which purifies them, by overcoming these bodily irregularities which produce them, is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The principle upon which this salutary alterative acts is as simple as it is philosophic. The origin of most diseases, and invariably those which affect the organs above mentioned, is weakness, caused by insufficient assimilation of the food. The Bitters speedily rectify the cause of the difficulty by restoring vigorous digestion, so that all parts of the physical structure are supplied with an abundance of pure, rich blood. This increases the activity of the discharging organs, and enable them to throw off the effete matter, which, rankling in the system, destroys health. This bodily refuse having been got rid of, and perfect assimilation re-established, there is nothing to prevent a healthy and active performance of the various functions. Such being the case, it is plain that the Bitters are not only the most reliable stomachic, but an eradicant of these diseases of the liver, bowels and kidneys which contaminate the springs of life.

ANGEL SLEEP AND ANGEL DEATH.

BY TILLIE LAUBACH.

Continued.

CHAPTER V.

Early in the specified evening the Angel Sleep called for the Angel Death. The truth is Angel Sleep had noticed many things he wished the Angel Death to explain. As they set out, Angel Sleep asked Angel Death whom he would rather visit first, to which Angel Death replied; "please yourself and it will be my pleasure." Then the Angel Sleep answered "there is a little boy, a lovely one, with curly hair, and deep blue eyes, and skin, O, so like the delicate lily. When my eyes are hungry for the beautiful, I look on him. He is not only beautiful, but so amiable, so gentle, I love to visit him; but I often find him in tears, and it is long ere I can send him to the fairy land of dreams. I often wonder why that gentle child should have so much sorrow. I thought you must be lurking round, playing with his tender heart strings. But now I know you to be too good: Tell me all you know of him, you are so wise.

"There my brother" said the Angel Death for they were now in the child's room. This is indeed a lovely child, and I too have often feasted my eyes upon his beauty. But if you would know the cause of his tears, look at his little feet, bruised, chaffed and sore from going barefoot, and, also, list to his breathing—and that cough, if cough, indeed, it may be called, and not a convulsive whistle. Exposure bears hard upon that fair, fragile flower too delicate by far to endure the scorching rays of the sun and the wind's rude blasts. I do not lurk around it; but I do linger near him—There is a garden, brother Angel Sleep, where purest, fairest, faintest, fragile flowers bloom. Where the hot tempered sun is not their guardian; or passionate winds their warden. Neither is there ugly worm to gnaw their roots but where they may safely, sweetly bloom on forever, kept and now riched by the King of beauty:—Say, brother Angel Sleep, would you not this flower be transplanted thither."

"I would, indeed, O, good Angel Death: But why are his feet so sore, and why?"

"I will tell you," interrupted the Angel Death, "his parents are too poor; or too careless to buy shoes for the child, and though they love him, (after a fashion of their own) he must go without shoes, and, too, he must eat coarse food for they cannot procure the delicacies he should have."

"And now," said the Angel Sleep (my readers must know while Angel Death and Angel Sleep were talking of this little boy they visited thousands of whom they did not speak at all. Perhaps they would like to know their exact position, or attributes, or power; but I cannot, positively, promise them when I can tell.) See there, as he pointed to a young girl who though it was nigh morning was still seaming on an elaborate garment—see that beautiful girl; twenty moons ago I used to find her in yon mansion wearing almost such garments as she is now making and seemingly happy as a bird. Then the roses played over her cheeks, but now the lilly supremely reigns over her visage. What wrought such change, brother Angel Death?

Ah, the story so oft repeated by mortals. The father found refuge beneath my wing. I carried him to the tomb. O, how gladly did he look on the prospect of rest. His property was seized by his creditors; those to whom it rightly belonged.—There was nothing for the poor delicate girl. So she must support herself and a sickly mother by the work of her own hands. But now send her to the fairy land of dreams and on the morrow when the glorious Ruler of day has finished his work on this side of His garden, we will meet again and see her take the garment home and hear the kind words of encouragement she will receive from the saintly lady to whom it belongs.

CHAPTER VI.

"Ah," exclaimed the Angel Sleep, "see she enters the back way, surely she knows the front door."

Just at that moment the sweetest music greeted their ears. The Angel Sleep stood as if enchanted for a moment. Then he glanced in the princely parlor—and O, what splendor greeted his view! The bright golden chandaliers. The ellegante wrought furniture. The carpet, O, such carpet—Brussels? No, but a very extraordinary pattern—A very velvet pile, with flowers one might almost fancy to be real—and the windows graced with, O, such delicate curtains held back by human hands. No, but by the sculptors best representations of humanity. But I must not thus digress; but follow the lady of those princely rooms as she majestically sweeps toward the kitchen to meet her dress-maker.

"Ah!" she says, haughtily, as she meets the girl, "you have brought it at last. I greatly feared I would not get it to-night. One does not know who to trust," and was about to leave the kitchen when the sewing girl (sweet lady) Angel Sleep called her, timidly asked if she could please pay her that night as she was really in great need. To which my lady Coraella, replied, not a little anerily, she would examine the work first and see if she was entitled to any pay. Saying which she unfolded the garment and examined it. O, how beautiful it was, and how tastily trimmed. But it did not seem to please my lady Coraella. This flounce was too deep. That cord too large, that "guipure" not properly set, the sleeves were trimmed a full half inch too low. Indeed, she was aggrieved, injured and ought to recover damages; but as she knew the girl was almost a beggar, she would pay her four dollars. But then she must not expect her to bother, Mr. Phillips that night, and she had not the money by her. So saying she haughtily swept from the kitchen. And the sewing girl pale, weary, disappointed and almost heart broken returned to her sick mother.

And when near the hour for the removal of the sombre robe and silver decked turban of night, the Angel Sleep and Angel Death, visited my lady Coraella. Her pale weary face did not call forth one spark of sympathy, even from the breast of the philanthropic Angel Sleep, for although he had long since learned that sorrow is sorrow no matter whether real, or fancied, he had yet to learn that pain and weariness are pain and weariness, no matter if deserved or undeserved.

And now Angel Death reminded Angel Sleep it was time to part for the night.

The Angel Sleep requested they might meet again as soon as possible.

To which the Angel Death replied "As when the next golden light illuminates the earth—Nay even already has the Sabbath, the seventh day of rest, begun. We will where men meet by hundreds to prepare for the time when I shall carry their bodies to the land of the dead and waft their spirits to the land where there is no need of the light of the sun, neither of the moon, to shine in it, for the glory of God did lighten it. And the tomb is the light thereof.

CHAPTER VII.

Angel Sleep's work for that night being done as soon as he had parted from Angel of the meeting and eagerly watched for Angel Death to come, which he did as soon as the congregation had assembled, and Angel Sleep and Angel Death entered the temple together and sat where they could see all but were of course themselves invisible.

The Angel Sleep's eyes naturally wandered from one to the other, to find his former acquaintances. And where he recognized the little boy whom he and Angel Death had visited the night before, his surprise knew no bounds. There in a cushion pew sat the boy looking indeed more like a seraph than a child of earth. Dressed in pure white relieved only by a blue ribbon at his throat and band around his hat of the same hue, and the delicate gaiter boots in which his poor bruised chapped feet were encased. And the parents and other members of the family—But what need to describe them, enough to say their dress might have cost a hundred dollars less and still have been respectable.

The Angel Sleep was so astonished he could not speak and looked blankly at Angel Death.

The tranquil Angel Death said why my brother such is life. I told you the truth, when I told you his parents think they are too poor to buy shoes for the child to wear, those delicate gaiter boots are for Sunday show and not for wear. Look there at the lady Coraella.

The Angel Sleep did as he was bid. The saint-like lady dressed in the elaborate silk dress the sewing girl had returned to her the night previous. How beautiful, indeed, it looked, with that elegant shawl, the latest from Paris. And bonnet, too, to match a bonnet of the richest velvet, trimmed with ribbon and feathers held by a pin of burnished gold.

And see the lady Coraella opens her gold edged hymn book, and hark, she joins the congregation in a hymn of devotion, and (O, consistency how beautiful thou art) sings as loudly as her tightly laced corsets will permit.

"Let worldly minds the world pursue
It has no charm for me.
Once I admired its trifles too
But grace hath set me free."

And then the prayer, at the close of which all join, my lady Coraella not excepted, and repeat with the pastor; "Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil; for thine is the kingdom the power and glory, forever,——Amen."

After they arose, Angel Sleep asked Angel Death: "Where is the sweet lady" we watched last night. "She is not here brother Angel Sleep," replied the Angel Death "She is watching her mother whom I shall soon carry from this beautiful wilderness of pain and sorrow." But 'tis well for the soul that it suffers now. And, too, for you sweet lady, that she must suffer to-day—To purify the gold from dross it must be put through a heated furnace."

But, said the Angel Sleep, to think of that lady treating her so harshly, sending her home last night without a penny and then pretending to be a christian—O, I can never forgive her. If I were not obliged I would never visit her again. "Do you remember our first meeting?" said the Angel Death. Had I at that time been clad in gorgeous apparel and you in a more humble garb, do you, verily believe you would have dared reproach me as you did?"

The Angel Sleep looked abashed for he knew he would not. Then the Angel Death continued "did you not, too, repeat Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us?"

About Peaches.

THE ORDER OF THEIR COMING.

The Times gives a full account of the peach crop, with the order in which they ripen and are sent to market.

Although a few premature peaches have been shipped from points on the peninsula, the marketing of the fruit will not begin until the middle of next week, with the first shipment of the Hales. The present weather is very favorable for this variety, which rots easily with rain, and is always picked green to prevent this. It is likely there will be a large yield of Hales and they will be the most remunerative of any variety to the growers for several obvious reasons. I have taken the trouble to obtain a carefully arranged estimate of the yield of each variety, and the Hales are put down at 300,000 baskets. They are not a very excellent peach, though demanded with eagerness as the first taste of the year. When the Hales have all been marketed an interval of two or three days will occur, when the "Tropny"—a very excellent variety of white peach—will come on about the 8th of August, of which it is estimated 500,000 baskets will reach the markets. Following this, August 15th, is the "Early York" variety and its genus, the most delicious and best flavored of all the yield, a juicy, red-white peach. Along with it, and only an offshoot from the York, is the new variety, the "Mountain Rose." About a million baskets of York and Rose will be shipped. When the Yorks have been almost exhausted, about August 20th, the first of the delicious yellow peaches, the Early Crawford, a large variety, will begin to appear. With these and much like them, but larger—in fact the largest peaches grown, some of them measuring twenty inches in circumference—will appear the Susquehanna and the Reeves. They are all offshoots of the old Malaccatown fruit. These peaches are considered the ne plus ultra of the fruit, and always command the very best of prices. Quite a good crop of them was grown this year, and they will be plenty. Seven hundred thousand baskets will be shipped. The growers will send this fruit to Europe on the Pennsylvania line, if practicable. Immediately following these, near the first of September, will come the "Oldmixon" and the "Stump of the World," a large white peach. There are more of this variety of peaches than any other, and whenever a glut has occurred in the market previously, it has been during the shipment of these peaches. When they ripen fruit will be very cheap, and it is not unlikely that on account of low prices the growers will refuse to ship any more until they have disappeared. Not less than two million baskets, and probably more, of this class of fruit will be shipped. Generally, when the Mixon have been disposed of, an interval of some days occurs before shipments are again heavy, when the late "Crawfords" appear, of which there are a great many. They come on about September 5th, and about a million and a half will be marketed. When they disappear the "Henpens" and "Red Rare Ripes," a mealy, dry peach, of only medium quality, begin to come on and continue until September 15th, after 500,000 have been shipped. Then the "Smock," the best peach to keep sound and much used in canning, will come on. These peaches are generally very profitable, as they keep well and may be re-shipped after a few days delay. Many of them this year will be sent West and to Europe. They are not a very juicy or first class peach, but on account of their solidity are much grown, and not less than 120,000 will be sent from the Peninsula. These generally close up the heavy shipments, only a few small white peaches coming on and continuing until Oc-

WHAT I KNOW ABOUT VEGETINE.

SOUTH BOSTON, May 9, 1870.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:

Dear Sir—I have had considerable experience with the VEGETINE. For dyspepsia, general debility and impure blood, the VEGETINE is superior to anything which I have ever used. I commenced to take VEGETINE about the middle of last winter, and, after using a few bottles, it entirely cured me of dyspepsia, and my blood never was in as good condition as at the present time. It will afford me pleasure to give any further particulars relative to what I know about this good medicine to any one who will call or address me at my residence, 386 Athens Street.

Very respectfully,
MONROE PARKER,
386 Athens Street.

DYSPEPSIA.

SYMPTOMS—Want of appetite, rising of food and wind from the stomach, acidity of the stomach, heartburn, dryness and whiteness of the tongue in the morning, sense of distension in the stomach and bowels, sometimes rumbling and pain; costiveness, which is occasionally interrupted by diarrhœa; paleness of the urine. The mouth is clammy, or has a sour or bitter taste. Other frequent symptoms are waterbrash, palpitation of the heart, headache, and disorders of the senses, as seeing double, etc. There is general debility, languor and aversion to motion; dejection of the spirits, disturbed sleep, and frightful dreams.

Gained Fifteen Pounds of Flesh.

SOUTH BERWICK, ME., Jan. 17, 1872.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:

Dear Sir—I have had dyspepsia in its worst form for the last ten years, and have taken hundreds of dollars' worth of medicine without obtaining any relief. In September last I commenced taking the VEGETINE, since which time my health has steadily improved.

My food digests well, and I have gained fifteen pounds of flesh. There are several others in this place taking VEGETINE, all have obtained relief.

Yours, truly,
THOMAS E. MOORE,
Overseer of card room, Portsmouth Co's., Mills.

All Diseases of the Blood.

If VEGETINE will relieve pain, cleanse, purify and cure such diseases, restoring the patient to perfect health after trying different physicians, many remedies, suffering for years, it is not conclusive proof, if you are a sufferer, you can be cured? Why is this medicine performing such great cures? It works in the blood, in the circulating fluid. It can truly be called the Great Blood Purifier. The great source of disease originates in the blood; and no medicine that does not act directly upon it, to purify and renovate, has any just claim upon the public attention.

GOOD EVIDENCE.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 26, 1872.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir—The two bottles of VEGETINE furnished me by your agent my wife has used with great benefit. For a long time she has been troubled with dizziness and costiveness; these troubles are now entirely removed by the use of VEGETINE.

She was also troubled with dyspepsia and general debility, and has been greatly benefitted.

THOMAS GILMORE,
229½ Walnut Street.

RELIABLE EVIDENCE.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir—I will most cheerfully add my testimony to the great number you have already received in favor of your great and good medicine, VEGETINE, for I do not think enough can be said in its praise, for I was troubled over thirty years with that dreadful disease, Catarrh, and had such bad coughing spells that it would seem as though I could never breath any more, and VEGETINE has cured me; and I do feel to thank God all the time that there is so good a medicine as VEGETINE, and I also think it one of the best medicines for coughs and weak sinking feelings at the stomach, and advise everybody to take the VEGETINE, for I can assure them it is one of the best medicines that ever was.

MRS. L. GORE,
Corner Magazine and Walnut Streets, Cambridge, Mass.

APPRECIATION.

CHARLESTON, Mass., March 19, 1869.

H. R. STEVENS:

This is to certify that I have used your "Blood Preparation" (VEGETINE) in my family for several years, and think that, for scrofula or Cankerous Humors or Rheumatic affections, it cannot be excelled; and as a blood purifier and spring medicine it is the best thing I ever used; and I have used almost everything. I can cheerfully recommend it to any one in need of such a medicine.

Yours respectfully,
MRS. A. A. DINSMORE,
19 Russell Street.

Is widely known as one of the most effectual remedies ever discovered for cleansing the system and purifying the blood. It has stood the test of years, with a constantly growing reputation, based on its intrinsic virtues, and sustained by its remarkable cures. So mild as to be safe and beneficial to children, and yet so searching as to effectually purge out the great corruptions of the blood, such as the scrofulous and syphilitic contamination. Impurities, or diseases that have lurked in the system for years, soon yield to this powerful antidote, and disappear. Hence its wonderful cures, many of which are publicly known, of Scrofula, and all scrofulous diseases, Ulcers, Eruptions, and eruptive disorders of the skin, Tumors, Blotches, Boils, Pimples, Pustules, Sores, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, and internal Ulcerations of the Uterus, Stomach, and Liver. It also cures other complaints, to which it would not seem especially adapted, such as Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Fits, Neuralgia, Heart Disease, Female Weakness, Debility, and Leucorrhœa, when they are manifestations of the scrofulous poisons.

It is an excellent restorer of health and strength in the Spring. By renewing the appetite and vigor of the digestive organs, it dissipates the depression and listless languor of the season. Even where no disorder appears, people feel better, and live longer, for cleansing the blood. The system moves on with renewed vigor and a new lease of life.
